Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 09 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly dry with patchy rain in the north. Breezy.

This Evening and Tonight:
This evening will see any showers in the south of the region gradually clear eastwards, with patchy rain continuing in northern parts. Low cloud developing around some coasts and hills. A warm night for most, especially in cities. Breezy. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Thursday:
Patchy rain in northernmost areas through the day, with sunny spells in the south, but scattered showers here later. Feeling warm, but breezier than recently. Dry overnight. Maximum temperature 24 deg C (75 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Sunny spells for most, but with some patchy rain on Friday. Bright and settled on Saturday. Hot on Sunday, largely dry and sunny. A risk of some coastal fog.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.